

 Quilter's Tip: How to Choose Batting *****

General Tips

- Order from thinnest to loftiest of the Quilter's Dream Batting that we use: 70/30, Deluxe, Supreme, Wool
- Higher the loft, the more it "pops" the stitch design
- Higher loft makes it easier to take up extra fullness and hide imperfections

All about 70/30 Blend

- 70% Cotton/30% Polyester
- Lowest loft Bear Creek Quilting Company offers
- Great for quilts expecting a lot of everyday use
- Great for thin, flat wall hangings
- Polyester helps to dry quickly while the cotton allows it to still be breathable and moisture-wicking
- Stitch designs can be stitched up to 12 inches apart – great for open stitch designs
- Has a light scrim so it will not stretch easily, yet the scrim is light enough to not affect drape

All about Wool

- 100% U.S. raised merino and domestic sheep wool
- Highest loft Bear Creek Quilting Company offers
- Really makes the stitch designs pop
- Does not absorb moisture, so will dry quickly and will not hold a stain
- Excellent for t-shirt quilts or quilts made with varying material types
- Good for closed stitch designs and will still have good drape
- Can become stiff if put into contact with heat – either air dry or dry with no heat, no ironing
- Lightweight but super warm
- No scrim, heat bonded
- Moisture wicking and breathable
- A favorite for hand quilting

All about Cotton Deluxe

- 100% natural renewable cotton grown in the U.S.
- No scrim
- Mid loft – loftier than the Quilter's Dream 70/30 Blend, but not as lofty as Supreme or Wool
- Good middle of the road, nice weight, and warm all cotton option

- Gives the project some weight while still being breathable
- Lowest loft suggested for projects with Minky to prevent the Minky “hairs” from coming through during stitching
- Great for a wall hanging with just a little texture
- Good for hand quilting – mid loft, no scrim
- Quilters Dream Cotton Deluxe is great middle of the road option

All about Cotton Supreme

- 100% natural renewable cotton grown in the U.S.
- No scrim
- Highest cotton loft Bear Creek Quilting Company offers – loftier than the Quilter’s Dream 70/30 Blend and Cotton Deluxe, but not as lofty as Quilter’s Dream Wool
- Great for seeing the stitch designs pop for those who don’t want to choose wool
- Dense batting that has 1/2 pound of cotton per square yard
- Great for projects that require thickness, weight, and volume
- Makes a heavy quilt for those that want the ‘weighted blanket’ feel
- Good for wall hangings that want the stitch out emphasized more
